Adler Board

By Crystal B.

Several weeks ago, I was asked to become a board member of the Adler Aphasia Center by Chantelle Walker, the President and CEO of the Center. I was flabbergasted and speechless because to me it's such a great honor. I have been trying to find a purpose and goal for my life and I finally have one now.

I was confirmed on April 9th and I will be doing my best to advocate for aphasia and the Adler Aphasia Center. Aphasia affects approximately 2 million people in America and those affected have probably suffered a stroke or a brain injury. It impairs a person's ability to communicate, sometimes you can't speak at all, sometimes it's only one word and sometimes it may seem like gibberish. It also affects reading ability, mathematical ability and comprehension. The inability to communicate is stressful and can lead to depression.

The Adler Aphasia Center gives me a new and beautiful family of people (members, staff, and volunteers) who uplift each other, laugh with each other and at each other and a place to voice any emotions you are going through. We communicate at the center with words, pen and paper and visual aids. This is a beautiful place to be and I'm so thankful.

Aphasia Access

By Mike H.

Last month I drove to Baltimore to help present our poster to hundreds of speech therapists and doctors at the annual Aphasia Access Leadership Summit. There were people from all over the country and even the globe. I was a little nervous.

Our poster talked about how aphasia groups help people to overcome the isolation and depression that follows a stroke or other brain trauma. These groups enable people to find new friends and communities.

People with aphasia like their groups. They want to spend more time at their groups, especially one-on-one time with speech therapists. They also want more outdoor activities, such as having breakfast outside, hiking, going to museums, or going to the movies.

I was nervous about talking to people at first. But after the first 15 minutes, the butterflies were gone, and the time flew by. I talked to lots of people and had a fantastic time. We can't wait to see how the Adler Aphasia Center will be even better, thanks to our poster work!

My Award

By Art M.

When I was 10 years old, in 1959, I won an award. It was for a report I wrote on fire prevention. The Mayor of New York City, Robert F. Wagner, Jr., gave me the award. It was a medal. My picture was in the newspaper called "Sweep." I still have the medal.

The contest is held every year. Many years later, I presented the award to the winner. I wore my medal that day.

I did a lot of research for the report. I use what I learned everyday.

Comedies for Kids

By George F.

When I worked at IBM, once a month I showed cartoons and comedies to kids. Before I showed a movie, I had to preview it to make sure it was appropriate for the children.

I had the pleasure of showing them Dumbo, Bambi, and Davy Crockett.

We saw them in the IBM cafeteria in Franklin Lakes. We had 75 kids! They ate popcorn, candy and soda, all for free. The kids' parents all worked at IBM and dropped them off in the afternoon for a few hours.

My daughter, Valerie was 10 years old and she came too. Some parents stayed with their kids during the movie and helped me. And some didn't. We all had a good time.

It was a joy for me to show the Disney movies and cartoons.

Oklahoma! Take 2

By Alyson B.

What a great day we had! My friend, Ed and I had a wonderful day watching “Oklahoma!” on Broadway. I didn’t know what to expect. I had heard that this version was brought into modern times.

We sat in the seats and we watched “Oklahoma!” “Oh, What a Beautiful Mornin’” and “People Will Say We’re in Love”, were highlights for me.

Following the performance, we saw parts of the terrific cast. Curly, played by Damon Daunnon in this version, and Ed, who played Curly in the Adler Aphasias Center shared a laugh. Jud, who was played by Patrick Vaill, in this Oklahoma version, was played by Mike H. in Adler’s version. Many cast members were outside the building. It’s so awesome to meet them.

Ed and I could not believe what a great time we had. We had a fun-filled day.

My Wonderful Family

By Lisa G.

I am a lucky woman. My children and grandchildren all live very close to me. I have a son and a daughter.

My son, Jason, is married with three children, all girls. They are 7, 11, and 19. They are the light of my life.

My daughter, Crystalynn, is married and has 4 stepchildren, two sets of twins, twin 11 year old girls and a 14 year old boy and girl.

I also have three brothers. One lives in Bayonne, one in Florida and one in Kansas City. I love them all.

Adler Aphasia Center, a non-profit organization with two full service facilities based in Maywood and West Orange, NJ and ten Aphasia Communication Groups located throughout the state, is an innovative post-rehabilitative therapeutic program that addresses the long-term needs of people with aphasia and their families. Aphasia is a communication disorder that impairs the expression and understanding of spoken language, reading and writing. It occurs most often from a stroke or other brain injury. It affects a person's ability to communicate, but not his or her intellect.
