Happy Changes

My name is Julie and I have been a part of the Adler Aphasia Center “Family” since September of 2020. I have been married for 33 years to my husband Dave and I’m the proud mother of a son and daughter…and our dog Ziggy.

In my spare time (when I’m not on Adler Zooms that is), I enjoy spending my time working out, traveling to such places as Colorado, Georgia and as far away as Iceland, as well as doing my meditation.

For 15 years prior to my stroke, I worked as an administrative assistant for an insurance and financial services practice. For many months after my stroke, I was nervous about attempting some of the tasks that were a part of my daily role. For example, much of my work was making phone calls to our home office. I had a fear of not being understood when I spoke. One of my proudest accomplishments came one day when I decided it was time to overcome my fears and make that phone call. So, I picked up the phone and made that call! Much to my surprise, the representative was able to understand and complete my request. I was both excited and relieved, and I believe this was an important turning point in my recovery.

Working with Adler and the many new friends I’ve had the pleasure of making has been a very important part of my recovery. The reason is that the people are caring, friendly, supportive and compassionate. We share similar challenges and feelings which helps me realize that I’m not alone in my recovery/rehabilitation. This has enabled me to relate to others with the same issues and to feel comfortable sharing my stories and struggles. Adler has really helped me build my confidence and I look forward to our continued calls and interactions. I look forward to my continued relationship with Adler Aphasia Center and the friends I’ve made, and I thank all of those people who have helped me get where I am today.
In 2015, I was at the pinnacle from a business standpoint. I was a successful investment banker with an MBA from a top business school. I was in peak physical condition and could do thirty handstand push-ups.

But on January 18, Martin Luther King’s birthday, I had a massive stroke - a left middle cerebral artery occlusion with a left cervical dissection. My doctor said he came to visit me and felt I would be in a vegetative state. I didn’t know what was going on at that point. I knew that I had a stroke and a deal I was working on at work was closing that week. I didn’t know that I was married or had a beautiful girl and a handsome boy as my children, until I got out of the hospital to go into a rehab hospital, 9 days later.

I had trouble talking and walking. I had right sided weakness, with right foot drop, and aphasia. I could only say “that right” or “that wrong”. Aphasia, I thought, took my words away. I even had trouble doing simple math and spelling, especially with syllables, was extremely hard.

I wanted to know what caused my stroke at 45 years young. Was it because I went to a chiropractor who adjusted my neck two weeks before my first stroke? I was consumed with finding out for almost 5 years…until I had my second stroke, in the same spot. I knew that it was karma telling me to enjoy life. I just want to live my life now. That change in my thinking has given me hope. I was not a chronically sick person who was feeling discredited and feeling like I was a burden to others.

I had to overcome what I call my fears. I had to appreciate life more. I had to show how ready and willing I was to accept that I had aphasia - that I could accept support from a group, such as Adler. It has taken me 5 years and two strokes, but I am so enthusiastic to be part of Adler. I have learned that having what I thought was a successful career is not that important anymore. I have learned that I want to help people by volunteering my time and effort to help people who, like me, had a stroke and have aphasia.

It has been a crazy year. I had my stroke in April 2020. I was in Kessler for 2 months. I went home after going to rehab and my speech improved day by day. I, unfortunately, had to get a catheter inserted.

Fast forward to February 2021 and I was in the hospital again. I had 4 seizures in one day. Then, I was kept in the hospital for 5 days. After that, I went to Kessler and stayed there for two weeks. Finally I went home. It was the best time going home and I have been getting healthier ever since. I have been going to a lot of doctor’s appointments.

In one day, I got 9 Botox injections in one arm. It didn’t hurt. For the first and second week of the Botox injections there was no movement in my arm. After the third week, my arm started to act differently. My arm is not the same as before. It’s no longer stiff and it is now relaxed. The feeling in my arm is coming back and my arm is not by my chest and it is now moving closer to my leg.

I am doing better. No matter how many needles I have to get, it doesn’t matter. I am doing more of the things that I used to do such as write checks, type on the computer, and eat with my left hand. I am happy to be alive.
